

Team has yet to play a ping pong match

PEKING (UPI) — American table tennis players talked and played basketball today with Chinese Communist university students who told them that ousted President Liu Shao-chi was alive but "his thought is dead."

The 15-member U.S. contingent stopped off at Chinghua University on the way to see the Great Wall of China. They were delayed for about five hours as they talked with the students and toured the university grounds in Peking.

After eating a late lunch at the university, the Americans piled into cars and two buses and traveled to the Great Wall. They later returned to their hotel in Peking.

The American ping pong team has yet to play a formal match, but officials said the U.S. players, who arrived Saturday on an unprecedented visit, would play here Tuesday afternoon and then leave for Shanghai on Wednesday.

The highlight of the day for the Americans was the trip to the university.

They left their hotel about 9 a.m. and reached the university at 10 a.m. where they were greeted by the school's revolutionary committee members, teachers, students and school workers.

The Americans sat in a reception room around a table with a white table cloth, smoking cigarettes and sipping black Chinese tea.

Later, the Americans were taken on a tour of the school grounds and they chatted with a number of other teachers in their late 50's and 60's who had studied in the states.

When they stopped off at a "727 truck" factory, Graham Steenhoven of Detroit, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, climbed up into the cab of one of the trucks and drove it around.

The "727" stands for July 7, 1968, when the first propaganda team came in to help run the school and unite two disputing factions during the cultural revolution.

On their way back from the factory, the Americans ambled into an open basketball class and paused to try a few shots.

Young vacationers on the way home

PARKER, Ariz. (UPI)—An estimated 30,000 college students and other young persons departed camp grounds along a 200-mile stretch of the Colorado River Sunday leaving behind mounds of litter.

California and Arizona authorities said that nearly 500 arrests were made during the week-long student vacation, most for drunkenness and narcotics. But, authorities added, that other than the litter, mostly piles of beer cans, the crowds stretching south along the river from Bullhead City were peaceful and "well behaved."

On the Arizona side of the Colorado, Yuma County Sheriff Travis Yancey said "the biggest part of the crowd has left. But there's lots of litter, lots of litter."

Yancey said he had 55 officers in the area the past week and a total of 315 arrests were made. The sheriff said it was mostly peaceful but "I just hope they do something different next year. I think we had a good holiday. We don't like to arrest people but the law is the law."

In Mohave County to the north, deputies arrested 81 persons and a spokesman said "for the size of the crowds, it was pretty peaceful."

On the California side of the river, 82 young persons were taken into custody on mostly drunk charges. "For the most part they were well behaved," said Sheriff's Lt. Walter Acuna.

An Easter rock festival in Death Valley whose sponsors had predicted a gathering of a quarter million persons wound up Sunday with only a little more than 1,000 hippies braving the intense heat, wind and dust.

The Inyo County Sheriff's office said that more than half the 2,500 young men and women who had congregated at the ghost mining town of Ballarat had left before the musical program and "spiritual happening" got underway.

"There was a little bit of rock music," said a deputy. "They got up at sunrise and ran around with nature a little, but that was all." There were no arrests.

In Los Angeles, Elysian Park adjoining Dodger Stadium was closed down Sunday afternoon after rioting broke out among a number of 5,000 youths attending a rock music festival and Easter "happening."

The festival began Saturday and was relatively peaceful until Sunday's violence. A total of 300 persons were arrested during the two days. Four policemen were injured and about two dozen youths suffered bruises or cuts in the melee.

U.S. uses 7½ ton bomb first time in Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force used its 7 1/2 ton blockbuster bomb as a tactical weapon for the first time today in the Indochina War, dropping two of them on Communist troop concentrations around besieged Fire Base 6 in the Central Highlands.

The bombs, largest in the U.S. arsenal except for nuclear weapons, were parachuted from C130 transport planes. They exploded a few yards off the ground, blasting holes as big as football fields in the jungles. Their concussion can kill a man or disable him by causing bleeding from the ears and nose.

Despite rain squalls and high winds in the Fire Base 6 region in the Central Highlands, B52s dropped 500 tons of bombs on the Communists near the base. The 23 sorties flown today raised to 2,500 tons the amount of bombs dropped in the area since the siege began March 31.

Front dispatches said the Communists had sent in 10,000 troops to the fire base area and that the government had a similar-sized force there, the heaviest concentrations since the invasion of Laos. U.S. military sources in Saigon said their intelligence indicated a "smaller" Communist force but did not elaborate.

The Viet Cong, which calls the fire base Hill No. 1001, broadcast several victory claims and said one Saigon reinforcement column broke and ran when it came under attack. The Viet Cong said they had killed 620 Saigon troops in the battle. Saigon reported 2,624 Communists slain at a loss of 172 government dead.

UPI correspondent Robert E. Sullivan reported from the area that the North Vietnamese commander in charge of the attack on Fire Base 6 had moved his headquarters from Laos into South Vietnam to direct the fight. The base is near the intersection of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam in the Central Highlands.

Sullivan, quoting highly placed South Vietnamese military sources, said the headquarters of Hoang Minh Thoa, commander of the 13-day-old offensive against the base, was believed located about 14 miles southwest of the base, but that he moved his headquarters frequently to avoid bombing attacks. The headquarters is known as B3.

The 7.5-ton bombs have been used previously to blast out landing pads in the jungles for U.S. helicopters but military sources said they were effective against massed Communist troops. In some operations the big bombs are floated down by parachute and detonated a few yards off the ground to blast out an area the size of a football field.

Front dispatches said the bombs were used today six to eight miles southwest of the border ranger post of Ben Het, itself six miles northwest of Fire Base 6.

Sullivan, reporting from the Central Highlands, said a North Vietnamese defector told interrogators he had seen 2,000 fresh North Vietnamese troops in a rear area awaiting orders to move into the battle area. He said the defector, Lt. Bui Ngoc Chieu, told questioners his battalion had been ordered to cut Highway 512 east of Ben Het, the base's only land link to the outside.

Ben Het withstood a 56-day Communist siege in the spring of 1969 when it was a Green Beret camp.

While the C130s unloaded their blockbusters, B52s returned to the area in strength. Military sources said the big eight-engine bombers have dropped nearly 2,500 tons of bombs on the Communists around Fire Base 6 since the post was overrun 13 days ago. It was recaptured later.

GI raises $30,000 in 12 hours

OAKLAND (UPI)—An Air Force sergeant says he raised $30,000 to aid a brother and sister stricken by a rare kidney disease in Texas in only 12 hours from servicemen in Vietnam.

Sgt. Robert L. Jones, 22, of Turlock, Calif., said he raised the money at Phanrang Air Force Base. He said one sergeant donated $1,000 from his reenlistment bonus and another soldier cancelled an order for a new car to give $450 to the cause.

Jones arrived from Vietnam Sunday and was met by his parents, his wife, Norma, and their 13-month-old son, Robert Jr., at Oakland International Airport.

"I was very surprised and proud when I heard what he had done," said Jones' pretty wife. He will have a 14-day leave with his family before returning to Vietnam.

Tired, but obviously happy, Jones flashed a $30,000 check made out to Paula Holt, 17, and her brother, Gary, 20, of Austin, Tex.

The two youths are victims of acute nephritis, an hereditary kidney disease which requires them to spend 15 hours a week channeling their blood through a machine to keep them alive.

The machine costs the H.V. Holt family at least $360 a month for each of the two youths. The family has been unable to meet the costs.

"I read about their situation in the newspaper," Jones said before leaving Saigon. "I kept thinking about them. I didn't exactly feel sorry for them, but I thought they needed help."

"I never expected the turnout we finally got," he told reporters in Oakland. "Everybody came through."

"I expected about $4,000. It just fireballed out and went overboard." He expects the fund to eventually reach $50,000.

Working through military channels, Jones began a fundraising campaign for the Holts by making a marathon radio appeal over the base commander's frequency broadcasting system, a special low-power radio station used on air bases in South Vietnam.

Still many legislative problems

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The legislature resumes the 1971 session today still facing the unresolved problems of taxation, welfare, school finance, the 18-year-old vote and reapportionment.

Different versions of measures allowing 18-year-olds to vote in state and local elections have been approved by both houses.

Now the Senate and Assembly must reach agreement on the same proposal.

Lawmakers in both houses have sponsored plans to place before the voters a proposed state constitutional amendment allowing 18-year-olds to vote in state and local elections.

Beginning in 1972 they will be allowed, by federal law, to vote in presidential and other national elections.

Another measure pending before the lawmakers would allow California to ratify a proposed federal constitutional change permitting 18-year-olds nationwide to vote in state and local elections. The legislature has not begun consideration of Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed massive welfare reform program which was not introduced until March 16. It is sponsored by Sen. Clair Burgener, R-San Diego.

Lawmakers also have not acted on tax reform, school finance or legislation to reapportion the assembly, senate and congress.

Reapportionment, based on the 10-year census figures, is required before the legislature can adjourn.

The adjournment of the 1971 session now is set for the end of July.

ONE OF THE nine candidates for queen of the 1971 Lompoc Flower Festival is Cecelia Brown, 17, 303 Montana St., Vandenberg AFB. Cecelia is being sponsored by the Lompoc Active 20-30 Club and is a senior at Cabrillo High School. Her hobbies and other interests include songleading, journalism and drama. She is president of the Keyette Club.

Americans paying more taxes than they owe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Millions of Americans, many of them scarcely able to afford it, are paying more income taxes than they really owe this year because they are confused by the complexity of the Internal Revenue Law.

Some are overlooking benefits they should have because they do not understand how to claim special advantages.

This is particularly true of some elderly persons permitted a credit of 15 per cent for some of their retirement income. This

Kennedy still poses 'major threat'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the Republican National Chairman, said today Sen. Edward M. Kennedy still poses a "major threat" as a potential presidential candidate, even though Kennedy has said he will not run.

Dole said the fact there is a crowded field of possible Democratic candidates, including Kennedy, does not necessarily mean those men believe President Nixon can be beaten in 1972.

"I think most of these are, for the most part, holdovers from the last campaign," Dole said in a UPI "Washington Window" interview.

"Certainly (South Dakota's Sen. George S.) McGovern wanted to be president then, and he wants to be now, and (Sen. Edmund S.) Muskie and (Sen. Hubert H.) Humphrey," he said.

"We see a few new faces probably with only an outside chance in (Indiana Sen.) Birch Bayh and (Iowa Sen. Harold) Hughes and perhaps Kennedy."

"Although he (Kennedy) has taken himself out repeatedly, I think he is still a major threat," Dole said.

Five desperadoes give up meekly after jail break

HONOLULU (UPI)—Five of six desperadoes who broke out of a county jail and threatened to kill any policeman in sight surrendered meekly and were back behind bars today.

The mother of one—triple murder suspect William K. Medeiros—said she hoped the public wouldn't condemn him because "everybody's a little naughty at times."

Police armed with sawed-off shotguns and M16 rifles closed in on a rented house in the swank suburb of Kahala Sunday and seized Medeiros, Daniel Cuevas and Edward L. Silva, also credit is designed to cut the tax burden on the elderly.

In theory it is easier this year for such a person to claim retirement credit since the IRS will do most of the work. If such a person wants the government to figure his credit, he has only to list the amount of his tax-exempt pensions (including Social Security and payments from any private pension fund) plus the amount of his earned income and the total of his qualifying retirement income.

This is far simpler than the system used last year. But the taxpayer still must obtain information that is sometimes difficult to assemble; he must file it on a separate piece of paper; and—in the first place—he must realize he qualifies for the credit.

The IRS concedes many taxpayers overpay every year. No one knows exactly how many but the figure surely tops a million.

The Senate Special Committee on Aging said recently the cost of honest mistakes falls hardest on the elderly.

The committee urged creation of a simpler tax return.

Hoffa to return to jail

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—James Hoffa, Teamsters Union official furloughed from a federal prison, spent Easter Sunday with his ailing wife whose condition appeared to be improving.

Doctors at the University of California Medical Center, where Mrs. Hoffa was taken last month after a heart attack, declared she was doing "quite well."

Attorney Morris Shenker said his client would return today to the penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., where he is serving a 13-year sentence for jury tampering. He was released Wednesday to come here.

Shenker said Hoffa, 58, visited his wife Josephine, 50, three times on Saturday and said she was "improving, doing fine."

The growing number of visits she can have is a sign of "marked improvement in Mrs. Hoffa's condition," the attorney added.

"At first he could visit her twice a day," he said. "Then it was three times a day."

Reporters saw Hoffa as he went to the hospital where an elaborate walkie-talkie system made certain corridors were cleared. A condition of his prison furlough was that he not talk to newsmen.

Shenker and Hoffa's foster son, Charles O'Brien, said Hoffa was staying with them at the Hilton Hotel but both denied it was in a $500-a-day suite.

"Mr. Hoffa is staying with me in a room that is $26 a day for one person and $7 for each additional person," the attorney declared.

Although in prison, Hoffa has continued as nominal president of the huge union, leaving day-to-day operations to an associate, Frank E. Fitzsimmons.

Marchers protest ship's sailing

BREMERTON, Wash. (UPI)—Nearly 300 anti-war demonstrators—including several off-duty military personnel—marched through downtown Bremerton Sunday afternoon to protest the sailing of the U.S. aircraft carrier Constellation.

Several of the protesters were sailors and officers attached to the ship and who had to report back for duty at midnight when their liberty ended.

The ship, which just finished a 10-month, $32 million overhaul at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, was scheduled to sail at 5 a.m. today.

She was to head for her home port of San Diego and eventually Southeast Asia for war duty.

The marchers ended up at the main gate of the shipyard where they heard speeches, poetry and music.

By late afternoon a group of about 35 was left with plans to hold an all-night candlelight vigil until after the ship sails.

Said another sailor: "We are in this because we love our country and we don't want to see it torn to hell."

Three women also were arrested at the home, which is in an area containing homes of celebrities such as actors Jack Lord and Richard Boone and former ambassador Clare Booth Luce.

Two others who took part in the Friday breakout from Halawa Jail—Wendell Kealoha, 18, and William C. Brown, 21, were arrested individually, both without resistance, while walking along highways outside the city.

Still at large early today was Edward Hose, 32, who was awaiting trial for the murder of his wife.

Medeiros, a suspect in last year's "chain reaction" killings of murder witnesses, reportedly warned during the jailbreak: "We'll kill any cop in sight."

Police said the fugitives left the jail with at least three guns and were to be considered "extremely dangerous, desperate men." But the first five arrested gave up with hardly a whimper.

Medeiros' mother made a plea in a newspaper Sunday for him to give up.

Medeiros and the other jailbreakers were charged with a total of seven murders.

Sisters successful in search for help

ORINDA (UPI)—It was miraculous that two small sisters stumbled successfully for four hours through dark, rain-soaked and wooded terrain to get help for their family which was trapped in a crashed airplane. Contra Costa County sheriff's deputies say.

Henry Boeger, a rancher who found them, put it this way: "There stood those little girls, wet and cold...they were a mess...one had a bad gash on her head."

"They were so serious about helping their family, they didn't let anything else bother them," the rancher added. "They were brave kids."

Deputies and Boeger were talking about Jennifer Bryner, 10, and her sister, Kelly, 9.

Because the youngsters got out, Boeger and the deputies were able to rescue James B. Bryner, 34; his wife, Brett; and their sons, Mark, 8, and Eric, 7.

All were reported in satisfactory condition Sunday at John Muir Hospital.

Bryner was trying to fly his family to Orinda from Ojai in Southern California for an Easter visit with relatives when the plane crashed and was demolished on impact on Saturday.

Boeger, on finding the sisters, notified deputies and then rode a horse to the wreckage.

High school students set teeter-totter mark

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Like the goldfish swallows and telephone booth stuffers of preceding generations, John Adam and Donald Ball, both 16, found it difficult Sunday to explain why they went up and down for 130 1-2 hours.

"It looked like the easiest record to break in the Guinness Book of World Records," Ball said. "Besides, we didn't have anything else to do over the Easter holidays."

The two Gardena High School students shattered the world teeter-totter endurance record of 124 hours at 4 p.m. Sunday

It was the unexpected getting together, Mrs. McMahon later explained, of her thigh-slit evening skirt and a gust of wind as she was leaving Parliament House. In a more accustomed setting, Sonia McMahon is pictured above with her husband and their two children, Melinda, 4, and Julian, 2½.

Changes sought in abortion law

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Legislation making major changes in the state's abortion law, including repealing a portion of the provision which allows abortions to preserve the mental health of the mother, was proposed today by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

Burke said introduction of the five bills and one resolution "in no way was to imply that I condone or accept abortions as means toward effecting birth control, or as a way of skirting one's responsibility for their actions."

"The purpose of these bill is a step toward preventing the flagrant abuses and toward closing some of the loopholes which some people have used to side-step the law for their own gain," said Burke.

One bill would prohibit the hospital committee which approves an abortion from basing permission for the operation on the need to preserve the mental or emotional health of the mother "unless she was receiving medically valid psychiatric treatment prior to her pregnancy," said Burke.

Current law allows the hospital committee to grant an abortion if it determines the mother's emotional or mental health would be endangered by having the baby.

Another bill would prohibit abortions after a mother is 10 weeks pregnant. The present limit is 20 weeks.

"It is a medical fact that premature babies weighing as little as 10 ounces have survived to become mature, normal adult human beings," Burke said. "I believe it is inhumanely cruel for society to permit the killing of human beings who have a chance to survive independently of the mother."

Other measures would prohibit the "injection of saline as a procedure in abortion," allow the abortion review committee to deny the request of anyone it feels did not ask for the operation "of her own free will" and would prohibit an abortion from being performed by any member of the abortion review committee.

The resolution calls for a study of abortion practices since the 1967 law went into effect.

Senator criticizes method of cutting timber

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Paul Bunyan would be blue as his great ox Babe if he could see great swaths of U.S. Forest Service land sheared bare of trees—all with government approval—says a Western senator.

Winding up two days of Senate hearings, Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., Friday specifically criticized the practice of "clear-cutting"—harvesting all the trees from a single area rather than thinning out only mature trees.

McGee said such practice had "devastated" National Forest lands in his home state. He was reported Sunday to be readying legislation calling for a two-year moratorium on clear-cutting and the naming of an independent commission to study how the Forest Service manages its own land.

The Forest Service, part of the Agriculture Department, oversees hundreds of thousands of acres of forested public lands, mostly in the West, which are opened to commercial logging on a selective basis. Proceeds go to the U.S. Treasury.

McGee said that if clear-cutting continues, the nation's forests would be "depleted to the point that would shame Paul Bunyan."

And Robert R. Curry, a University of Montana geologist, said clear cutting encourages the erosion of topsoil. He said the ancient Romans practiced similar wholesale cutting along the Adriatic Sea and the land there still is barren.

But at the same hearings, witnesses for timber companies said clear-cutting often was sound conservation policy.

George R. Staebler, forestry research director for the Weyerhaeuser Co., Tacoma, Wash., said clear-cutting not only was a good way to prepare for reforestation but also reduced the cost of lumber by reducing the time between growth of forests.

James F. O'Donnell of the American Plywood Association, also of Tacoma, said clearcutting actually enhanced the environment. Birds and small game animals thrive in the cleared areas, he said.

Israel claims Egypt has new Soviet planes, with crews

United Press International
An Israeli source said today in Tel Aviv Egypt had received "new types of aircraft" from the Soviet Union and that they were manned by Soviet crews. He declined to specify the make of the new combat jets involved, but previous reports said they were MIG23s which can outperform American F4 Phantoms.

U.N. truce observers reported to the United Nations today that the Israelis opened machinegun fire at two Egyptian Sukhoi-7 bombers which crossed the Suez Canal last Saturday. It was the second such overflight reported by U.N. observers last week but the first time Israeli anti-aircraft fire was observed.

The disclosure came as political sources said Prime Minister Golda Meir may call a special meeting of her cabinet this weekend to discuss the final draft of Israel's counterplan for reopening the Suez Canal under an interim settlement of the Middle East conflict. The Israeli source, commenting on newspaper reports Egypt has acquired MIG23s and possibly an advanced version of the Sukhoi-7 fighter-bomber, said "it constituted a qualitative contribution" to Egypt's military might.

The source said the Egyptians were preparing for the resumption of war although they were still pursuing diplomatic efforts to end the Middle East conflict. He said the latest Soviet arms shipments to Egypt also were meant to offset recent acquisition of modern weaponry by Israel.

News men were not permitted to identify the Israeli source in any way. He declined to comment on a report in the Jerusalem Post that the latest acquisitions by Egypt of advanced weaponry "is likely to harden the military's stand against any pullback from occupied Arab territory."

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told a televised news conference Sunday night he "could not deny" reports MIG23s have reached Egypt. He also said he favored the reopening of the Suez Canal for international shipping under appropriate guarantees and safeguards for Israel's security.

Arab leaders gathered in Cairo today for a review of the Middle East situation and the latest clashes between the army and Palestinian guerrillas in Jordan. The conference between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Sudanese President Maj. Gen. Jaafar Numeiry, Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyan Deputy Prime Minister Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud is the first since the Middle East cease-fire ended March 7.

There was fighting between Jordanian troops and guerrillas in the Ramtha area of North Jordan Sunday, each side blaming the other.

Bumper sticker belongs to hospital patient

By WILMA JACK
Feature Writer

An automobile bumper sticker that appeared on a recent Vistas (Record) magazine cover has traveled down an unexpected detour. It is a story of near-tragedy that has, literally, ended on a happy note.

Gently admonishing that "If you're too busy to sing, you're too busy," the international barbershop quartet sticker was photographed in the back window of an unknown Volkswagen parked in front of the Lompoc District Hospital.

Because of the interest of Mrs. Harvey Betty, the Record learned Friday that the bumper sticker's owner, Dennis Sturm, of Mesa, Ariz. had been hospitalized in the Lompoc District Hospital since March 21. Mrs. Betty's husband shares the same hospital room with Sturm. Both had heart attacks.

Sturm, 49, said he was in Lompoc and had just paid a visit to his son. Back in his motel room, he was jolted by pain in his chest and down his left arm. He laid down to rest, he recalled. But when it hit him the second time, he knew he must get to a hospital.

"The hardest thing I had to do was get that Volkswagen in reverse, my arms were aching so bad," he said during an interview in his hospital room.

He parked his car in front of the hospital, walked in to the registration desk and turned in his keys. Then he was hustled off to the emergency room. Wednesday, he hopes to be released.

Last week, matters began to improve. Sturm, a barbershopper with the Scottsdale, Ariz. Vigilantes Chorus, was entertained last week by Lompoc's Diatonics, composed of tenor Mike Chernock; lead, Kelly Phelps; baritone, Don Miller; and bass Curley Weeks. Afraid they might disturb other patients, they closed the door. Among other local barbershoppers to visit Sturm was Fred Back of the Four F Quartet.

In the meantime, Sturm's own chapter sent him tapes, which were finally played after the hospital staff found an old unused tape recorder which was made operable again. Sturm lightly regards himself as "some kind of freak" in the modern barbershop quartet world. He's actually a barber by profession, reportedly the only one in SPEBSQSA in the tri-state region of Arizona, Utah and Nevada.

A member of the Chord-Ringer Quartet, Sturm has enjoyed barbershopping for about seven years. Though he's classified as a baritone, he also gets "stuck with" lead and tenor, he says.

And the bumper sticker? Sturm considers it something of an anomaly. It came from a singing colleague in Ontario, Canada.

Three hurt in traffic accidents

Three persons suffered minor injuries in Lompoc traffic accidents over the weekend, authorities reported today.

Anna Jean O'Daniel, 25, of Newcastle, Del., was injured Friday in a collision of her car and one driven by Marion Ballote Vioria, 59, of Lompoc. The accident occurred shortly before 9 p.m. at Maple Avenue and I Street, according to the report. The O'Daniel woman was treated at Lompoc Hospital.

Police said Vioria's car was westbound in the 100 Block of West Maple Ave., and the other car southbound in the 500 Block of North I Street. Both cars sustained major damage.

In an accident yesterday, Mars Thomas Essary, 63, of 701 E. Pine Ave., Space 77, and Marlys June Swanson, 47, of 1536 W. Pine Ave., suffered minor injuries in a collision of their cars at Pine Avenue and P Street, authorities said.

The accident occurred at about 9 a.m.

Fire burns ranch garage

Fire of undetermined origin swept through a double garage, a bunkhouse and six storage sheds on the Frank Lewis Ranch east of Lompoc last night before county firemen could bring it under control.

Officials said the fire also burned a nearby house slightly and did an undetermined amount of damage to equipment stored in the sheds. No one was injured. Cause of the blaze and the amount of the loss were still undetermined today.

The fire erupted at about 5:30 p.m. on the Lewis Ranch, about seven miles east of Lompoc on Highway 246.

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Authorities ordered tourists today back from the upper slopes of Mt. Etna, where for more than a week Europe's tallest volcano has been rumbling and bubbling lava.

Police probe four burglaries

Lompoc police today were investigating four burglaries including one in which a $2,700 diamond ring and other jewelry was stolen.

Thomas Clinton Feland, of 504 N. Lupine Ave., reported the jewelry loss occurred sometime between last Tuesday and Thursday. Missing is a ladies platinum diamond sapphire ring valued at $2,700; a silver wedding band, valued at $30; and a black onyx stone ring, valued at $50.

The jewelry was taken from a dresser in a bedroom, according to the report.

Burglars stole a .38 caliber firearm, a quantity of ammunition, and $25 to $30 worth of coins, from the home of William Beal Fackler at 1016 N. Poppy Ave., police said. The loss occurred between March 3 and Sunday, according to the report.

In another incident, burglars stole an estimated $25 in pennies from the home of Hubert J.R. Johnson at 306 S. L St., reports indicate.

The fourth burglary was discovered early today at the San Martin Cafe, 112 N. A St. An undetermined amount of money was taken by the cafe's coin operated equipment including pool table and cigarette machine.

PLANE BOMB THREAT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A telephoned bomb threat forced an Eastern Air Lines 747 jet to make an emergency landing at Dulles International Airport Sunday.

The plane's 283 passengers were evacuated and a search of the craft turned up nothing. The plane was en route from New York to Miami when the threat was telephoned to Eastern's office in Newark, N.J.

Teachers to present board with salary plan

Representatives of the school district's teachers tomorrow will present their first salary proposal to the school board in the opening round of the annual budget negotiations.

No information was available today on the nature or content of the proposals. School staff officials have recommended that the trustees acknowledge the teacher recommendations and refer them to the Certificated Employee Council and representatives of the board for "review and discussion."

The trustees have until June 8 to adopt the district's 1971-72 fiscal budget.

Tomorrow's meeting is set for 3:30 p.m., in the Central Administration Building, on North A Street.

In other action, the trustees will consider other agenda items including the following:

Psychoanalytic are drawings at S.B. Museum

An exhibition entitled Jackson Pollock: Psychoanalytic Drawings is now on view at the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and will continue through April 18.

A few years before he was acclaimed as one of the great American painters, Jackson Pollock endured several crises of terrible intensity which culminated in an experience of profound renewal.

That year he suffered a complete breakdown and was recommended by a friend to Dr. Joseph Henderson, a psychiatrist with whom he underwent 18 months of psychoanalysis. The experience affected his entire creative life, according to C. L. Mysuph, former Curator of the Maxwell Galleries and author of the text in the fully illustrated catalogue which accompanies the exhibition.

Initially, Pollock was unable to articulate his conflicts, and, in an effort to open communication, began to use drawings to supplement words where words had been inadequate. During the next year and a half Pollock submitted a large body of work, declared by Dr. Henderson to represent "the experiences (Pollock) had been through. They seemed to demonstrate phases of his sickness . . . showing a gradual psychological reintegration which allowed him to recover to a considerable extent during the next two years."

Sixty - nine of these drawings and one gouache are included in the current exhibition. The catalogue is now on sale in the Museum shop.

Girl Scouts receive grants for new well

Tres Condados Girl Scout Council has received a $5,475 grant from the California Community Foundation for the drilling and installation of a new water well at Camp San Emigdio, located in the Los Padres National Forest near Mt. Pinos.

The California Community Foundation is one of the largest foundations in the country. Miss Helene Seeley of Santa Barbara, member of the council's finance committee, directed the foundation request.

The new well will enable over 500 Girl Scout troops in the tri - county area to use the camp year - round for snow and troop camping. Camp San Emigdio will operate as a troop and family camp for Girl Scout troops and Girl Scout families this summer. Troops or families can select any dates from July 11-23 or from July 26 - August 7 at a cost of $5.00 per night per troop or $3.00 per night per family. Arrangements may be made through the Girl Scout office locally.

Camp San Emigdio is a 14 acre site with unit shelters and large meeting hall and is located near the town of Frazier Park. It provides exciting opportunities for snow camping during the winter and semi - primitive camping during the summer.

From Berlin, Germany, she is now enrolled with Cheryl at Vandenberg Jr. High School. Kennedy School in Germany which the girls attended. Since her sister's return home last summer, Jacqueline has been intrigued with the thought of a similar experience. Her parents contacted Mrs. Hedlund to check on the possibility. Flying first to New York where she visited friends of her father, a theater owner - operator, Jacqueline was met in Los Angeles a week ago by the Lundbergs. She will return to her home in July.

Dear Abby

Does women's lib have an answer for this?

DEAR ABBY: For the person who disagreed with women's lib when it comes to labeling lavatories, "Ladies and Gentlemen":

Here's how it's done in cattle country: A New York businessman and his wife were attending a convention in Houston. On reaching the convention hall, the wife excused herself saying she had to find a rest room. She headed down the corridor, but when she found the rest rooms she was more confused than ever, turned around, rushed back to her husband and asked impatiently, "Hey, what am I . . . a steer or a heifer?"

V.O.

DEAR V. O.: If he didn't say "a heifer," he gave her a bum steer.

DEAR ABBY: I plan to be married this summer and my problem is what to do about my parents who have been divorced for four years.

I have always wanted an elegant church wedding, which will cost a lot. My mother can well afford it, and says she will gladly give it to me, but I can't have my father there.

I want my father to give me away, but mom says if she makes the wedding her father will give me away. I love my grandfather, but I would rather have my own father give me away.

My father is broke. The divorce took everything he had, and now he has a new wife and family to support. Mom is single, and she hasn't spoken to dad since the divorce, but regardless of what happened between them, I still love my dad. I love mom, too, but I don't think she's being fair to make me choose between a lovely wedding without dad, or none at all. What do you think?

SOMETHING BLUE (ME)

DEAR BLUE: Unless you can persuade your mother to change her mind, you will have to make a choice. I feel that parents who have parted should put their own feelings aside when it comes to the weddings of their offspring. If they can't do that, then the bride and groom should ask their clergyman to perform the ceremony in the presence of those friends and relatives the young people want, and let the battling parents sit home with their grudges.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Hoodwinked," and all the other nice girls who were fooled by married men who posed as bachelors. First of all, Abby, your answer was a dud. You said, "Be a little more fussy. And if you don't know the man, 'know the fixer-upper.'"

Some of the fixer-uppers mean well, but they, too, have been fooled.

And how can a girl be "more fussy," when some of the biggest liars even go to church with you?

Here's my answer: Girls, demand proof. If a man says he's divorced, ask to see his divorce papers. If he tries to tug at your heart strings by telling you he's a widower, ask to see his wife's death certificate. If he's over 25 and says he's never been married, ask to meet his mother. If she lives out of town, tell him you'd like to call or write to her. Also, ask him where he works, and tell him you would like to call the personnel department to check his status.

I lived in Alaska for five years and I have seen many hearts broken by married "bachelors." I have been shown divorce papers and death certificates and am now married to a man who not only showed me his divorce papers but told me he admired my spunk and respected me for my principles.

"FUSSY" IN OAK PARK, ILL.

DEAR FUSSY: For girls who want to impress men with their "spunk," your answer was better than mine. Thanks for writing.

Jim: "Here is a good hand for second-hand low. South couldn't wait to put the queen of diamonds on West's jack and his ace on East's king."

Oswald: "If South had used a transfer bid to get the four-heart play into the North hand there would have been no trouble winning game and rubber. Or if South had simply played low from dummy as he should have, everything would have worked out nicely. Even after playing the queen of diamonds, South could have made 10 tricks if he had let East hold the first trick."

Jim: "I'll show the play after letting East hold that first trick. East's best return is a diamond. South must go up with the ace, enter dummy with a trump, ruff a club, enter dummy with a second trump, ruff a second club, go to dummy with another trump, ruff out dummy's last club and finally throw West in with a diamond."

Oswald: "West's best lead will be a spade. If he leads low, South must stick in dummy's nine. If he leads the jack, South must cover with dummy's queen."

Jim: "Either way, East is end-played and forced to give South the rest of the tricks."

Oswald: "I mentioned transfer bids earlier. Actually, this South hand is not one that really cries out for use of a transfer bid since sometimes it is better to keep the really unbalanced hand concealed."

Winners of wormy apple awards

By BETTY CANARY

Nobody is more boring than a name dropper, especially if you don't recognize the names she's dropping.

She grates on the nerves almost as much as the man who sits next to you at a concert and hums along with every selection—usually one note ahead of the orchestra, the better to prove he knows the music.

We all learn to suffer, as gracefully as possible, this sort of person. But there are others who deserve, at the least, a bit of wormy apple.

At the top of my personal list of those I hope bite into wormy apples this year goes the woman who glanced at my daughter and said, "Aren't you lucky she has such nice big feet! My little Alice wears a 2-A and fitting is so difficult."

Near the top of anybody's list is the man who loads drinks at parties and thinks the highest form of amusement is telling dirty jokes.

At least in second place goes the man who says, "Women are all alike." Tied with him is the woman who says, "Isn't that just like a man?"

A special category is reserved for those who wait until a party is over or until you have finished your speech or will tell you on the way home such niceties as:

"I didn't want to say anything at the time, but you have a curler in your hair."

Or, "I'll bet you didn't know your coat was covered with dog hair, did you?"

Or, "I wasn't going to mention it, but there's a safety pin sticking through your blouse."

Biggest bite of the year goes to the "friend" who informs you she has seen your husband lunching with the receptionist four times in the past month.

The core, with hopefully half the worm still in it, is reserved for writers of anonymous letters and makers of crank telephone calls.

The stem and a small bit of peel goes to those who have nothing more interesting or enlightening to say than, "These kids with long hair look like freaks," and "In MY day, we..."

And may a whole treeful of wormy apples fall on the heads of drunken drivers, drug sellers and dispensers of malicious gossip.

Tuesday, April 13

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—A day which may bring about the showdown you've been waiting for. Make certain that others are protected against falsehood.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—A day when verbal protest may be most unwise. Bide your time; you can achieve more at a later date when others have calmed down.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Recent antagonists should be moving over to your side at this time. You can hasten a personal victory today.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Remain amenable to talks with higher-ups. This is no time to stand on ceremony demanding the consideration you know you deserve.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—The tough stand others are taking on the present situation may serve as a good example for you. Look into recent decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—A return to basic principles of honesty and openness is called for. See that you inform others of intentions.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—A day which will not be improved by any decision made from a basis of nostalgia. Take facts into consideration.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Accept the inevitable. Otherwise, you will find yourself wasting valuable energy on a fight that is impossible to win.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—The wise Sagittarius will consolidate his efforts. To attempt more than one thing at a time would be unwise just now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Don't allow nagging doubts to keep you from carrying out your plan

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Honesty in your approach to another's problem will gain you more in the long run than any attempt to be kind—but false.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Live up to your reputation for getting things done both economically and well. Apply recently learned knowledge to today's problem.

Assemblyman gives ultimatum on Medi-Cal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Gordon W. Duffy, R-Hanford, today handed the Senate Finance Committee an ultimatum—either approve his Medi-Cal bill rescinding some Reagan administration cutbacks or kill it.

Duffy said Sunday if the committee tried to amend his measure to provide rate increases for nursing homes he would refuse to take the bill any further.

The lawmaker said if the Democratic — dominated committee forces him to drop the bill it could cost the counties about $8 million.

"What's going to happen—I don't know," said Duffy. "Many senators have indicated to me they will not vote for the bill unless it has some nursing home reimbursement."

Duffy reached agreement with the Reagan administration last month on rescinding some of the cutbacks made last December.

As the Duffy bill cleared the Assembly—over the administration's objections—it resumed some services including programs needed for children to attend and perform in school, such as eye glasses.

It also restored nursing home fees to $14 per day instead of the $12.60 they were receiving under the cutbacks.

But even if the measure cleared both houses of the legislature it could not become law without Gov.

Ronald Reagan's signature.

Duffy said the administration finally agreed to rescind some of the cutbacks, including those to provide children with the aids to perform in school, revise its drug provisions and reimburse counties for about $8 million in costs.

But the administration would not agree to restoration of the $14 per day fee for nursing homes, said Duffy.

He said he was not strongly opposed to the nursing home increase but felt the other areas were more important. Duffy said it was not worth it to jeopardize his agreement with the Reagan administration to fight for the nursing home rate increases.

Last December the administration ordered all Medi-Cal providers, except regular hospitals, to take a 10 per cent rate cut and eliminated "nonessential" and "nonemergency" services to recipients.

The cuts were made to avoid a projected $140 million deficit in the program of supplying medical aid to the needy.

Measles at highest level

ATLANTA (UPI) — Measles across the nation reached its highest level in four years during the four-week period ending March 27, the Center for Disease Control reports.

There were 11,214 cases reported during the period, the CDC said. It said the "critical factor underlying the spread of measles was inadequate vaccinating" of those susceptible to the disease.

A total of 30,900 cases were reported the past 24 weeks, an increase of 175 per cent over the same period a year ago and up 360 per cent over the identical period in 1968-69. The Northeastern, Mid-Atlantic and Central states had the largest numbers.

The CDC said the measles vaccine generally had been effective with the only high rate of failure noted among children who had been vaccinated before age one.

"This high failure rate was noted in outbreaks in Greenwood, Ill., and Jefferson County, Ala.," the CDC said. "In all other outbreaks investigated, the failure rate was considerably lower because there were fewer children exposed with a history of improper vaccination."

Lon Nol returns to Cambodia after illness

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Prime Minister Lon Nol, still feeling the effects of a stroke suffered Feb. 8, returned to Cambodia today from Honolulu where he underwent two months of medical treatment.

Lon Nol arrived aboard a U.S. Navy DC6 at Pochontong Airport where he was greeted by Acting Prime Minister Gen. Sirik Matak, U.S. Ambassador Eory Swank and about 1,000 other well-wishers.

"We still have some work to do," he told Sirik Matak, who kissed him on both cheeks in greeting.

Business notes

AIR SERVICE — Added services and slight time changes from those which have been in effect are included in the summer, 1971, schedule announced today by Swift Aire Lines. The summer schedule will go into effect today.

New mid-day flights will make it possible for those in the Santa Maria and San Luis Obispo areas to spend just half a day in Los Angeles and be back in their places of business right after the lunch hour. To accomplish this the traveller takes the early morning flight which gets him into Los Angeles just after 8 a.m. and returns on the noon flight.

The new schedule also makes possible forenoons in San Francisco and San Jose. The return trip, however, cannot be completed to San Luis Obispo until 3:05 p.m. and to Santa Maria until 3:35 p.m.

Swift Aire will continue its early morning and late afternoon flights which it has flown since it began its scheduled operation two years ago. These flights make it possible for travellers to have a full business day in Los Angeles, San Francisco or San Jose without extra costs of an overnight stay.

A later flight from Los Angeles, much requested by persons in the Santa Maria and San Luis Obispo areas, is included in the new schedule. The new flight will leave Los Angeles at 7:30 p.m. for arrival in Santa Maria at 8:25 p.m. and in San Luis Obispo at 8:45 p.m.

Summer schedules may be obtained on request. The phone in San Luis Obispo is 544-4677 and in Santa Maria 925-0987; mailing address P.O. Box 1381, San Luis Obispo, 3233 Skyway, Santa Maria.

Dear Sir:

If your husband had cancer, a lung removed less than three years ago, now a brain cancer successfully removed, what would you do if you were in a wheelchair because of polio and quite dependent on your husband?

You would urge all responsible men and women to please write Senator Alan Cranston, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510, to pass the bill, S34 for the Conquest of Cancer.

When my husband first learned of his cancer, he decided to devote the rest of his life and our meager savings to help other cancer victims. All the major cancer specialists that he talked to before his brain surgery heartily agreed with him on the great need for more effective steps to conquer cancer, as incorporated in S34.

Please write to Senator Cranston NOW and ask him to vote for S34.

Yours hopefully,
Mrs. A. L. Platky

Dear Sir:

I am writing in answer to Mr. Jackson's column of April 1, 1971, concerning recycling of newspapers. In his column Mr. Jackson states that it is unlikely that we shall see additional newsprint recycling mills until the problem is solved of chemicals, ink and waste fiber from the process going into the already overburdened industrial sewers. Mentioned also are the obstacles of 9 million gallons of water used per day for each 300 tons of newspapers processed and the cost of approximately $20 million to build a new mill. These points serve to re-emphasize the fact that it is easier to create pollution than to solve it; a fact that any committee attempting to bring new industry into an area would be wise to consider in depth when searching out companies.

Before we give up on encouraging recycling mills however, I feel some other facts should be discussed. The United States is the largest producer of paper in the world. We export less than 10 per cent of our output and still import over 5 million tons of newsprint from Canada each year. There are 93 mills in Wisconsin alone. Paper manufacturing mills locate on the edges of rivers because of the huge amounts of water used in processing. The minimum rate of water used in paper-making is 7½ million gallons for 300 tons of pulp up to 7 times that amount at a maximum. Most waste is dumped back into the rivers. 20 per cent of the wood pulp used in making newsprint goes through the sulphite process. To put it simply, the pulp is cooked under heat and pressure with sulphuric acid to break it down into a soft pulpy mass. After the "cooking" it is washed. The liquor from the cooking stage is, in most cases, dumped into the sewerage system. It lends itself to recycling but is usually discarded, perhaps for reasons of cost. The next stage, bleaching, involves some very harsh chemicals such as chlorine, chlorine dioxide and sodium peroxide. They are expensive and many mills recover them from the water used to wash the bleached fibers. Some residue, however, is deposited into the sewerage system also.

In Massachusetts I grew up near 2 large paper mills. The process of making paper is one of the dirtiest industries in that area, rendering rivers unfit for swimming or fishing for miles below the effluent disposal outlets. This summer I stopped in St. Johns, New Brunswick, to see the falls that appear to reverse in the river as the tide changes. It has been a tourist attraction there for many years. Due to a large pulp mill located a few hundred yards upstream, watching the phenomenon can be a nauseating experience. The water was discolored with huge unsightly globs of waste covering much of the surface.

Here, in Canada, as in New England, much of this water eventually finds its way into the Atlantic Ocean. The sulphur stench in the air and water was appropriate to Dante's vision of Hell. In Pictou County, Nova Scotia, the most serious pollution is caused by the pulp industry. Take any town where a pulp mill is located and it will have a thick pall of smoke that often will streak the sky from one end of the town to the other.

It boils down to the fact that we are already polluting our rivers and air in the paper-making process. One solution would be to provide tax relief for those mills now in existence who would convert from raw manufacturing to recycling. They are already using the water so new sources wouldn't be tapped. The chemicals are already being recovered in some processes and could be almost totally recovered in recycling, as well as manufacturing if the technology were encouraged either through tax relief or subsidy.

One benefit accruing to us would be the preservation of vast tracts of forest now cut down for pulp wood. The forests provide us with fresh oxygen and many disappearing species of wild life with shelter. There is deep concern in Eastern Canada for the cougar who is now scarce in that part of our continent as well as here. It takes 20 years for a pulp lot to reforest, excluding the hard woods. Most pulp is composed of wood fiber from soft coniferous trees such as jack pine, spruce and hemlock. Some hardwoods are also used, such as birch and oak, but these are almost completely gone from the Northeastern forests.

In Philadelphia one of the top ten polluters is the city trash incinerator. Recycling would delete the burning of tons of newsprint in hundreds of cities and aid in the reduction of this form of air pollution.

Recycling at this stage still poses problems and cannot qualify as a pristine solution, but in the balance it adds up to a better alternative than the mess we have now.

Yours truly,
Kathleen C. Ivory

Colbert's 6 RBI's crush Dodgers

United Press International

Nate Colbert is only one of three reasons why the San Diego Padres are flexing impressive muscles in their third year as an expansion team.

At the moment, however, the 6-foot, 2-inch, 210-pound first baseman is the hottest hitter in the National League and one of baseball's most under-publicized sluggers.

Colbert drove in six runs with two homers and an infield out to lead the Padres to a 9-7 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday and now has five homers and 14 runs batted in after six games. The Padres are 3-3 after their six games and feel they are far ahead of such previous expansion teams as the New York Mets and Houston Astros in development toward pennant contention.

In addition to Colbert, the sluggers the Padres are counting upon to make them contenders are Ollie Brown and Clarence Gaston, drafted by club President E.J. Bavasi along with Nate in the 1968 draft which formed the club. The trio combined for a total of 90 homers in 1970—three more than were hit by the whole Dodger team.

"We think Colbert is acquiring the stamp of a home run hitter," says Manager Preston Gomez. "If he can cut 20 strikeouts off his 1970 total of 150 he can hit 45 to 48 homers and be one of the game's outstanding sluggers."

The Mets nipped the Cincinnati Reds, 1-0, in 11 innings, the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs, 7-4, the Atlanta Braves topped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Montreal Expos, 11-4, and the San Francisco Giants downed the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-2, after a 4-2 loss, in other National League games.

In the American League, it was Detroit 5 Baltimore 4 in 11 innings and Baltimore 9 Detroit 3, New York 1 Washington 0 and

Spring mixer golf results

The Men's Association of the Village Country Club held its Annual Spring Mixer Saturday. The tourney was a two best balls of fivesome format with 24 teams vying for the top spot.

There was a tie for first place. The team of W. F. Flaherty, Frank Tranfa, Ray Ruh, Ed Lilly and John Thomas had a net score of 119. Tied with them was the team of Ed Sperber, Clyde Watts, Bill Bruce, Archie Nogle and one other golfer who was a blind draw.

Four strokes back, in third place with a 123 net, was the team of L. Stokes, Bill Graybill, Walter Conrad, Bill Ebbert, and Lyle Holloway.

Washington 4 New York 3, Cleveland 7 Boston 2, Milwaukee 3 California 0, Minnesota 6 Chicago 0 and Kansas City 10 Oakland 5.

Colbert homered with two on after Tommy Dean walked and Gaston singled in the first inning and connected again after Gaston walked in the third. Both shots were off Don Sutton and went deep into the left field stands. Tommy Phoebus, acquired from the Baltimore Orioles in a winter trade, went five innings for his first NL victory.

The loss was the fourth in six games for the Dodgers, picked by most experts to win the National League's Western Division Title.

Jerry Grote led off the bottom of the 11th inning with a homer off Wayne Granger to give Met reliever Tug McGraw his first win of the year. Tom Seaver allowed five hits and struck out 10 in nine innings before giving way to McGraw, whose mediocre work out of the bullpen was considered one of the reasons for the Mets' failure to win the NL pennant in 1970. The loss was the fourth in a row for the Reds, who haven't won yet this season.

Cesar Cedeño, at 20 one of the NL's brightest young prospects, drove in three runs with a triple and a sacrifice fly for the Astros. Don Wilson survived a three-run barrage in the first inning and went the distance for the victory. Bill Hands suffered his second straight loss for the Cubs.

Sonny Jackson of the Braves tripled in the tie-breaking run in the eighth and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ralph Garr after Atlanta tied the score at 1-1 on a seventh-inning homer by Orlando Cepeda. Jim Nash yielded seven Pirate hits in scoring his first victory of the season. Dock Ellis was the loser.

Rookie Roger Freed, acquired from the Orioles during the winter, hit reliever Howie Reed's first pitch for a fifth-inning grand slam homer and drove in another run for the Phillies. Barry Lersch picked up the victory with the relief help of Darrell Brandon. Ron Swoboda, the former Met, tripled in a run during a three-run eighth-inning uprising by the Expos.

Power-pitching was the name of the game in St. Louis, with Bob Gibson doing the honors for the Cardinals in the first game and Juan Marichal returning the compliment for the Giants in the second game.

Gibson, who hasn't lost to the Giants since Sept. 17, 1968, beat them for the sixth straight time with a six-hitter. The victory was his first of the season and 191st of his career. Joe Torre hit his third homer for the Cardinals in the second game.

Lompoc breezes to win in Relays, DP second

The Lompoc Braves won their own Lompoc Relays Track Meet Saturday, much to the surprise of coach Frank Hiatt. "We didn't figure to get much more than 40 points," Hiatt commented.

Lompoc got a lot more than 40 points, 85 to be exact. The Braves, with the help of a record breaking performance by senior Charles Jackson, scored 87 points in the varsity meet to outdistance their nearest competitor, Dos Pueblos, a team that totalled 67.

San Marcos followed in third position with 47. Bishop Garcia Diego tallied 26 and San Luis Obispo scored 23 points for fifth. Six more teams rounded out the point scoring.

Jackson's record long jump was the only varsity record broken. Because of high winds, the running events participants just couldn't get moving faster than in years past.

The four year Lompoc letterman leaped 23 feet, 5½ inches to win the long jump.

He beat out Bob McCourt of San Marcos and Bill Cheadle of Dos Pueblos. McCourt set the pace for Jackson (if that can be done in a field event) by leaping 22-5½. That mark is the best ever for a Royal, and put the pressure on Jackson to really "get it on." He did, with his final jump of the meet.

The Braves had several outstanding competitors in the varsity meet. Sid Dansby won two first places, in the triple and high jump, and helped to win the 880 relay. The big senior also ran a leg of the shuttle hurdles, one of the only Lompoc "losing teams."

(The shuttle hurdle team took second.)

Walt vonFlotow turned in one of the best performances of the day with a 2:00.6 clocking in his part of the two mile relay. With the stiff winds, the fine time is one to be very proud of.

Every Brave entered in the meet won a place ribbon, evidence of the success of Hiatt's weeding out process that has been taking place over the last few weeks.

But the Braves couldn't mount enough points in the B and C competitions to win, even though they ran well. San Marcos took the team trophy in both sections of the meet, with 53 and 63½ points respectively.

In the B meet, Cabrillo followed Righetti and Santa Maria for fourth, just ahead of Lompoc's fifth place. But the Conquistadores could only manage a fifth place in the C competition, behind the Royals, Lompoc, Dos Pueblos, and Santa Paula.

Buck defense too much for Lakers

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Larry Costello issued a warning to the Los Angeles Lakers Sunday following the Milwaukee Bucks 91-73 win over the Lakers.

"We're going out there ready to explode," Costello said. "We're way overdue and I can feel it coming."

Costello was talking about the shoddy offensive performance by his Bucks, a performance which was good enough to win, but still way below the Bucks' standards.

Milwaukee shot 48 per cent from the floor, and the only reason they won was because the Lakers could only hit on 33 per cent of their shots.

The 73 points run up by the Lakers tied the record for the fewest points scored against the Bucks in their history, and Costello credited that to a defense by Milwaukee he called "superb."

"Our defense won the game for us," he said. "The guys were really hustling, forcing them (the Lakers) to take bad shots. We were superb."

Lakers Coach Joe Mullaney sort of agreed with Costello. "I don't know if they were that tough defensively," Mullaney said, "but our problem was hitting the open man. We had a problem executing against that type defense."

The defense both coaches were talking about was a ferocious trap defense that saw Milwaukee players continuously double-teaming the man with the ball.

Admittedly Milwaukee's task was made easier by the troubled health status of the Lakers. Jerry West and Elgin Baylor were on the bench as expected, but just before the game the Lakers received another blow.

Keith Erickson, who has provided some firepower for the Lakers' offense, came down with a bad case of stomach cramps and didn't even dress for the contest.

Mullaney admitted that the Lakers "missed Erickson." But he said it was "more the Bucks' style of defense that bothered us than the loss of any one player."

Erickson has appendix out

MILWAUKEE

(UPI)—Keith Erickson, the Los Angeles Lakers' valuable swingman, underwent surgery at Lutheran Hospital here Sunday night for removal of his appendix.

The forward-guard complained of stomach cramps Sunday and missed the Lakers NBA semifinal playoff game with the Milwaukee Bucks. The Bucks won 91-73 to go ahead 2-0 in the best-of-seven game series.

Masters golf tourney

Nicklaus 'too relaxed'; jittery Coody wins

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Charlie Coody, who got the Masters Championship, a new green coat for the Easter Parade, and "revenge" all in the same package, joined with the disappointed man he defeated, Jack Nicklaus, today to offer the duffers of America a strange bit of advice:

"If you want to play championship golf—be nervous."

"I never got over my first-tee jitters all day, and it helped me," said the new champion from Abilene, Tex. "It helped me to keep concentrating and keep thinking about getting done the things I had to get done."

"I was just too darned relaxed," said the crestfallen Nicklaus, who saw his hopes for golf's first pro grand slam go down the drain as he and young John Miller tied for second place, two strokes behind Coody's winning nine-under-par score of 279 for 72 holes.

"I birdied the first hole and I thought, 'Ah, now everything is going according to plan,'" said Nicklaus. "It never did. But all the time I kept thinking that it was going to—I kept feeling sure that soon everything would start happening for me, that I would get birdies and I would win the tournament. It happened, but the opposite way."

"Yes, I was overconfident," confessed Nicklaus, who already won the PGA Championship this year and was aiming at a "slam" including the Masters and U.S.

and British Opens. "Not until I heard Coody had parred, did I realize I wasn't going to win."

The 33-year-old Coody fired a two-under-par 70, after starting the day tied with Nicklaus for the lead. Nicklaus had a par 72 and the 23-year-old Miller of Napa, Calif., shot a stunning 68. Miller actually held the lead after 15 holes, standing nine-under-par. But he bogeyed the 16th and 18th.

Coody knows how that feels, all right—until his triumph Sunday he was known in Masters history as the man who had the title in his hands in 1969 and blew it by bogeying the last three holes.

It was "revenge" that Coody mentioned the first thing in his hour of triumph.

"In 1969 I was one mighty disappointed fellow," the tall, slope-shouldered Texan said. "It ate at my insides for a long time. I got a little revenge for that today."

Coody twice blew big leads in this Masters, too—he led the first round by three strokes and had a four-stroke lead at one point in the third round before falling back into a tie. In the end he had to come from behind after young Miller stormed into the lead.

"There was pressure this time, but it was a different kind of pressure," he explained. "That time I was in front and other people were trying to catch me. This time someone else was in front and I was trying to catch him."

Sweeping a Saturday double header from Allan Hancock, the Huskies from East Los Angeles Junior College won the 1971 Casey Stengel Easter Tournament in Norwalk.

The Huskies fought back to take the title after losing to the Bulldogs Friday, 7-2. Sophomore Frank Reyes hurled a four hitter for Hancock in the first game. Four players from Hancock had two hits apiece in the game, and the team totaled ten safeties. Huskie hitting star Reggie Rutherford doubled off Reyes, after hitting two home runs, a double and a triple earlier in tournament action.

Ex-Cabrillo ace Tony Mason pitched impressively for the Bulldogs in the second game of the series, but the Bulldogs fell victim to a rash of costly errors and lost 3-1. Mason, before being lifted for a pinch hitter, went six innings, allowing only one earned run. Freshmen Bruce Mitchell pitched the last two scoreless innings for Hancock.

It was three errors by the Bulldog infield in the second inning that scored two unearned runs off Mason. Those two runs were the difference in the ball game. The win went to Huskie Ernie Teller who allowed but five hits in his second complete game victory of the tournament.

In the third and deciding game of the series, the Huskies rallied after being behind by two runs in the seventh inning, to win the game and the tournament, 4-3. With two outs in the eighth inning Rutherford hit a triple off Mac Fisher to score one baserunner. Rutherford then tied the game by touching home plate on a passed ball. The were 0-9 in their tough league going into the tournament, as opposed to the Bulldogs leading 7-3 mark in C.C.A.A. action. But E.L.A.C. squeaked by Golden West and stunned the state's number one ranked jaycee team, Los Angeles City College, 3-0, before beating Hancock two-out-of-three.

Washington's dough-ful Senators

Dennis & Curt & Ted & Frank

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

(First of Two Parts.)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — One warmish Florida day this spring the Washington Senators baseball team was in what one might call action. Pitcher Denny McLain, who is bad at math, suggested to the umpire that he had the count wrong. And it began from there.

A fly ball was hit to center fielder Curt Flood. Flood, recently returned from Denmark, pounced his glove in anticipation and the ball nearly broke his fist. Two-base error.

Don Wert, newly arrived from Detroit with a bad back, lost a brief skirmish at shortstop with a batted ball. Another runner on. A ground ball to third baseman Joe Foy was gracefully scooped up by left fielder Elliot Maddox. Foy conquered the next grounder to him. But threw to first in such odd fashion that first baseman Frank Howard, his head in a cloud, quizzically observed the ball go by.

"Hey, put a tent over that circus," boomed a voice from the rival dugout.

And a Washington baseball writer in the press box said quietly, "We now have some of the highest-priced ballplayers in the game. We now have some of the most exciting ballplayers in the game. The sad thing is that we still may have the worst team in the game."

The height of melancholy may be what happened to the Senators' vibrant manager, Ted Williams. Perhaps the most knowledgeable student of what he calls the science of hitting, Williams lingers long hours with his players in hitting seminars. Last season, the Senators tied for last in the league in club hitting. (Not to mention finishing last in the American League's Eastern Division.)

The reason for the hitting catastrophe was illuminated unexpectedly during a pre-game, inter-team hitting seminar with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Williams had several Dodgers around him and was vigorously describing hip movements. He popped two questions at Maury Wills. Wills spoon-fed the right answers. Williams stopped, smiled. "You know hitting, don't you, Maury?" said Williams.

"I ought to," said Wills. "I read your book" (Williams' autobiography, "My Turn At Bat").

As the laughter subsided, Jim French walked by. French is a smart fellow, who has a master's degree in finance from Indiana University, and is the Senators' third-string catcher.

"I read the book," he said. "I know all the answers. But I still can't hit."

That's not altogether true. In puckish fashion, in fact, French likes to say that he is Williams' most successful project. He batted .184 in Williams' first year as manager (1969) and by diligence and deep thought pulled his average up to .211 last season.

When someone asked Williams if he will carry three catchers this season, he replied, "Well, yes. We've gotta have 25 players—interpret that any way you want."

Williams can be this wry in his analysis of his team. "Our infield's our biggest problem," said Williams.

Frank Howard
Obscuring first base.

(Pause.) "We've got other problems." (Pause.) "But right now our infield's the biggest."

The infield became a problem when two-fourths of it (third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez and shortstop Ed Brinkman) was traded to Detroit for McLain, Wert, Maddox. Joe Foy was picked up from the Mets to play third; his hitting has been good but his fielding has been frightful. At shortstop will be rookie Toby Harrah. Second: Tim Cullen, it is said, plays a marvelous second base "but with a .214 batting average he has no choice." He will probably platoon with Bernie Allen, who hit 20 points higher last season.

Frank Howard, 6-8 home run slugger who arrived in camp at 300 pounds, will obscure first base, except when he is asked to tramp around left field. When Howard is sent to pasture, Mike Epstein, until his prayers are answered and he is traded, will take over. Or, Tom McCraw, recently received from Chicago.

But Washington is rich in talent—rather, some of the talent is rich in Washington: Howard makes $140,000, Flood $110,000, McLain $90,000. And relief pitcher Darold Knaflitz, who did "save" 27 games last season, but more impressively lost 14 while winning two, received a $10,000 raise, and now earns $40,000 a season. And who knows, if he wins four games this year he might break into the $100,000 bracket.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

6-Watching the Ball

If ever there's been such an overworked and misleading bromide as "Keep your eye on the ball," I don't know what it is. Of course you keep your eye on the ball. What else would you be watching while you swing a golf club? Your caddy? A jet plane overhead?

But no one ever tells you what part of the ball to watch. Consequently, many players will watch the top of the ball. But if you watch the top, that's liable to be where you hit it—and you won't be very happy with the results.

I try to watch the spot I'm going to hit. That's the back of the ball, of course. I know players who set the ball on the tee so that the trademark is at the back. That helps them concentrate. I don't do that, but maybe you'll want to try it.

If you watch the back of the ball from the time you begin your swing until you hit it, you'll be apt to make a good shot. You may not be able to see the club actually contact the ball, but, in trying to, your head will stay in good position behind the ball, and you won't be prone to let your body sway back and forth.

You want to keep your eye on the ball, all right, but only on the spot you want to hit.

Bruin tennis team beats SC

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA's defending NCAA championship tennis team can win without three of its top players.

The Bruins proved that Saturday with a 5-4 decision over University of Southern California to improve their record to 9-0.

In the No. 1 match, Jeff Borowiak, last year's national singles champion, was a default winner over the Trojans' Marcello Lara. Borowiak won the first set 6-3 and was ahead 1-0 in the second when Lara said he could not continue because of a sprained thumb suffered in a fall in the match.

"Yes, I was worried about this one," UCLA coach Glenn Bassett said after his team's fifth win in a row over Southern Cal in dual match competition.

"But now I'm sure of one thing. We've got tremendous depth."

The Bruins played without the Kreiss brothers, Mike and Bob, and their No. 2 player, Haroon Rahim.

McAlister nears 28' long jump

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Although Bob Beamon went an unbelievable 29-2 1/2 for a world record and a gold medal at the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City, no long jumper has ever done 28 feet.

Beamon bypassed that figure before his startling leap.

UCLA track coach Jim Bush has a candidate to do it. He's freshman James McAlister.

"I think James will be the first man to do 28 feet," Bush said. "Believe me, he's a real threat to win that gold medal at Munich."

You have to believe the man.

McAlister fouled on a long jump of 27-10 Saturday in a Pacific-8 double dual meet before a throng of 12,343 at UCLA. He won the event at 26.

In the two-way competition, the defending conference champion Bruins thrashed Stanford 108-37 and University of Southern California humbled California 101-43.

Off the best marks Saturday, USC surprisingly figures to beat UCLA 75 1/2-69 1/2 when the teams meet May 8.

Cal coach Dave Maggard, whose Golden Bears won the NCAA title last spring but then lost it when Isaac Curtis was ruled ineligible, thinks not.

Maggard said the Bruins have a slight edge "because of a little better first place strength." He said the two teams plus Oregon are the best in the country and rate better than Texas-El Paso.

McAlister may miss the UCLA-USC competition. He is scheduled to begin spring football practice Wednesday.

For Southern Cal Saturday, Willie Deckard was the big star, winning the 220-yard dash in a meet record 20.5 seconds and anchoring the victorious 440 relay team that was clocked in 39.5.

Edsel Garrison turned in a 44.7 anchor leg in the mile relay, making up 20 yards to give the Trojans a win in 3:10.2.

UCLA is at Washington State and the Trojans host Washington at the Coliseum next Saturday.

Trojans, UCLA baseball game

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Defending NCAA champion University of Southern California opens defense of its Pacific-8 baseball title Tuesday when the Trojans face UCLA at the Bruins' Sawtelle Field.

Greg Widman, a junior right-hander who compiled the lowest ERA on last year's staff, figures to pitch USC's conference opener for coach Rod Dedeaux.

Under Dedeaux, Southern Cal was won six NCAA titles and 23 conference crowns in 29 years.

The Trojans host California and Stanford next weekend at Bovard Field.

Dodger castoff Foster has winning AL debut

United Press International
A change of scenery finally seems to be bringing out the best in Alan Foster.

Foster, billed for nearly five years as the second coming of Sandy Koufax, never quite made it with the Los Angeles Dodgers, compiling a 14-24 record in three seasons.

The Dodgers peddled Foster to Cleveland during the offseason and Foster made his American League debut a memorable one Sunday, allowing only three hits in his 8 1/3 innings and igniting a five-run eighth inning rally that carried the Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Squires rip Nets, move to ABA semis

United Press International
The Kentucky Colonels need only a victory over the Floridians tonight at Miami to complete the pairings for the American Basketball Association's semifinal playoffs.

The Colonels took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven series Saturday night with a 118-101 victory while the Virginia Squires advanced to the Eastern Conference finals by defeating the New York Nets 118-114. Virginia's victory gave the Squires the series over the Nets 4-2.

Indiana and Utah easily advanced to the Western Conference finals last week by sweeping their respective quarterfinal series in four straight games. The Pacer and Stars, who waged a season-long battle for first place in the West before Indiana finally prevailed in the closing days, open their best-of-seven series tonight at Indianapolis.

New York seemed about to tie its series with at 3-3 when the Nets took an 11-point lead in the final quarter but rookie Charlie Scott sparked the Squires on their comeback with 18 points in the final 12 minutes of play.

"I felt I had been sub-par the series up to tonight," said Scott after this brilliant performance which saw him finish with a total of 38 points. "Winning this one is money in the bank. It means about $1,000 a man to us."

Darrell Carrier scored 31 points for Kentucky and Louis Dampier set a league playoff record with 18 assists in the Colonels' victory Saturday night. Mack Calvin led the Floridians with 29 points. A triumph move the Floridians tonight would move the series back to Louisville for the seventh and deciding game Tuesday night.

With the score tied at 2-2 in the eighth, Foster doubled off Gary Peters and Larry Brown was hit by a pitch. Vada Pinson's single scored Foster with the go-ahead run and Brown scored on an infield out. Walks to Ken Harrelson and Ted Ford accounted for another run. Eddie Leon singled in another and rookie Gomer Hodge doubled for the fifth run of the inning.

The hit was the fourth in as many major league at-bats for Hodge and his fourth run batted in.

Foster was bothered by wildness in his first AL start, walking nine batters, but Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark is sufficiently impressed.

"His kid knows how to pitch," said Dark. "And I'm not worried about him. He'll do the job and I think he'll do it much better than I had hoped he would."

In other American League action, Baltimore beat Detroit 9-3 after losing the doubleheader opener 5-4. Washington nipped New York after bowing 1-0 in the first game. Milwaukee blanked California 3-0. Kansas City ripped Oakland 10-5 and Minnesota shut out Chicago 6-0.

Dave McNally pitched a seven-hitter for his second victory of the season to lead the Orioles to their second game decision after Bill Freehan's 11th-inning gave Detroit the triumph in the opener.

Don Buford had three hits and scored two runs in the second game to highlight an 11-hit Baltimore attack. Dave Johnson, Boog Powell and Andy Etchebarren drove in two runs each for the World Champion Orioles.

Freehan's homer in the opener came after Baltimore had rallied in the eighth and ninth innings to tie the game at 4-4.

Bernie Allen's bases-loaded, pinch-hit single tied the score and Curt Blefary's error on the hit allowed the winning run to cross the plate as the Senators earned a doubleheader split with the Yankees. The Senators trailed 3-0 in the sixth when Elliot Maddox singled and score on Frank Howard's double. Walks to Mike Epstein and Richie Scheinblum filled the bases and Allen's single drove in Howard and Epstein. Scheinblum scored from first when Blefary bobbled the ball.

Blefary had been the hero in the opener, beating out an inside-the-park home run when his line drive eluded center fielder Curt Flood. Steve Kline pitched a five-hitter and outduelled Washington's Dick Bosman.

Marty Pattin pitched a three-hitter and Bernie Smith smashed a home run to lift Milwaukee past California. The victory was the third in four games for the Brewers and the second in a row for Pattin, who allowed only three singles.

LOMPOC — RE. 6-7577

BY BOB LILLEY

About six years ago a Los Angeles resident bought a five acre parcel N.E. of Lompoc from a "Friend" who owned 20 acres. He paid $10,000.00 for his five acre rural site, on easy terms, with a low down payment. Last week he came up, for the first time, to inspect his wooded estate. He found to his dismay, that it did not even exist as a legal parcel as no lot split had ever been filed. It had no water, and the only access was by a long since deteriorated oiled sandy road. It is at this time a completely unusable parcel. There is a lesson in this — he should have checked with a relator before buying or insisted on at least a policy of title insurance! We'll be glad to answer any questions.

NOSE TO THE GRINDSTONE?

There is a way for you to continue bringing home the bacon, increase your income, and not have to keep grinding away.
HOW? Become a U.I.I. Distributor and own your own Snack Shop vending machines. You can join the ranks of over 6,000 distributors from coast-to-coast for as little as $700 to $7,000.

Start part-time, a few hours each week, and grow to full time. All you do is service and maintain your own equipment and collect the nickels, dimes, and quarters which will grow into five dollar bills, tens, and hundreds!

In starting you'll have your own business without having to make personal sales calls or solicit business. U.I.I. secures the locations for your machines and trains you in all phases of the business.

Toll free telephone lines throughout the nation are provided so that you can communicate immediately with the home office. A (IBM System-3) computer ordering system allows you to re-order nationally advertised vending products in a hurry.

You will enjoy yourself, have spare time (if you want it) and not have to keep your nose to the grind stone.

For full detail on how you can become a U.I.I. Distributor, write today! Give phone number and personal references.

Shoplifters get something for nothing.

This season more Southern Californian shoplifters will be arrested, photographed, fingerprinted and booked than ever before. Because stores are arresting everyone they catch. And prosecuting. So law enforcement agencies are building a monumental collection of original signed prints.

One set of prints stays at local agency offices, another goes to Sacramento for permanent file. The last set goes to the FBI.

And stores exchange information about the people they catch. A daily bulletin arrives at every store security office. Another copy often goes to the credit department.

All in all, a shoplifter can't escape his record. Even a juvenile's may be around for life.

But the merchants you deal with would rather avoid criminal prosecution. They'd prefer to forget the whole thing. But they can't ignore the loss of millions of dollars every month. That's why they're taking action.

This message, prepared through the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce, is one of their actions. They hope that once people understand exactly what shoplifters get, there will be fewer to catch.

ODD MARRIAGE

BANGKOK (UPI) — The Bangkok Post today described the recent marriage of a wealthy landowner and a young market vendor—both women.

"Hundreds of people from miles around flocked" to the ceremony in the northern province of Kamphaengphet, the English-language newspaper reported.

"It rapidly took on the proportions of the social event of the year, if not the decade."

The landowner always had dressed in men's clothing, the newspaper reported, and when she met the 24-year-old vendor three years ago she decided not to reveal her true sex.

The romance blossomed, the newspaper said, "but the secret finally had to come out. It did—three months ago."

To the landowner's delight, the newspaper said, the vendor decided it made no difference.

The mother of the "bride" asked for a dowry of $200 but the landowner increased it to $300 and threw in other valuables as well.

Final opportunity

A final opportunity to see and hear the nine candidates for the three seats on the Lompoc Unified School District board of trustees will be afforded Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the multi-use room of the Lompoc Public Library.

Sponsored by the American Association of University Women, the forum will provide an opportunity for all to hear the qualifications and reasons why the candidates believe they should be selected to guide the policy and administration of our Valley's school system.

What should a voter look for in the selection of a school trustee? The California School Boards Association has prepared such a guide that is worthy of study:

1. Has the candidate an unselfish interest in the public schools, the community and in every child?
2. Has the candidate arrived at a position of recognized leadership in the community?
3. Is the candidate seeking the position for personal prestige or political gain?
4. Is the candidate a known quantity in the community?
5. Is the candidate a leader in his own occupation or community group?
6. Is the candidate able to think independently and objectively about a problem?
7. Will the candidate accede cheerfully to the decisions of the majority?
8. Has the candidate a record of the kind of leadership that will represent the district as a whole rather than a record identifying him with a particular group, cause or geographic area?

H & Ocean by Harry Crompe

Are you "dedicated?"

As Americans these days we are prone to throw around the word "dedicated" rather loosely. The Santa Paula Daily Chronicle last week points out that some of us are dedicated to our church — for one hour a week. And we consider a man dedicated to his country if he pays his taxes, knows the words of the Pledge of Allegiance and the Star Spangled Banner, and votes once a year, if convenient.

All of us claim to be dedicated to the American way of life, but are we?

The Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association in their publication suggests you check yourself on the following questions:

1. Have I written to my representative in Washington within the past six months?
2. Did I vote in the last general, primary or school board election?
3. Have I ever attended a meeting of the City Council?
4. Have I ever scanned the youngsters' textbooks to find out what is being taught in our schools?
5. Have I ever taken the trouble to read up on the advantages of our way of life?
6. Have I ever volunteered for civic service, civilian defense, political action or community self-help projects?

7. Have I opposed needless federal spending even though it may have involved personal sacrifice?
8. Have I ever read the first 10 amendments to the Constitution?
9. Have I taken the trouble to learn what communism is all about?
10. Have I taken the trouble to learn what capitalism is all about?

If you can truthfully answer "Yes" to all 10 questions, then you are standing in an extremely exclusive inner circle, as far as we are concerned, of dedication to the American way of life.

We might add that should you not be able to answer "yes" to the 10 questions, you take some time to bone up so that soon you will be able to do so and proudly call yourself a "dedicated" person to the American way of life.

Letters to the editor

Dear Sir:
We are always hearing about what's wrong with our teen-agers, how about something on the positive side?

A group of teens, headed by Doug Phillips and Jeannie Callahan, had an Easter egg hunt with games and prizes for all the young children in our neighborhood. It lasted for most of the morning with all having a very happy and joyous time. Everything was supplied by the teens including supervision of the very tiny tots.

That's a very nice gesture planned by the Lompoc Valley Republican Women's Club for this coming Thursday. They are having as honored guests at a luncheon new American citizens by choice. On the day we pay our income tax, too ... We're glad to have our family back today following their Easter vacation on the ranch. Bachelor life for us is not the ultimate with our ability to cook. We know the cat is happy to have them back again, too, in order that he can get back to being spoiled, which he enjoys ... Speaking of the cat, he is completely bewildered of late. We have hung an antique clock on our living room wall, complete with pendulum and gong. The cat has spied the pendulum as something strange and he sits, hypnotized under the clock, watching the pendulum swing. We're expecting him to spring at any moment but fortunately, it would have to be a high spring.

I'm sure I'm not the only parent who appreciates their efforts, nor am I the only one who has a warm feeling inside for our young people.

I hope you will print this because our teens deserve to read more about how most of us (and I'm willing to bet it's most) in the so called "establishment" have great faith and belief in them.

Three cheers for the teens! Our teens! Keep up the good work. I, for one, am proud of them. Thank you.

Dear Sir:
One irate consumer of utilities in the city of Lompoc would like to know how many others have complained about terribly high bills the last few months. Surprising to find as the readers for said utilities re-read the meters they had been charged a hundred plus cubic feet, cubic inches or kilowatts as the case may be above the actual month's reading.

There is recourse for us. Please call 6-6954.

Chaotic world

BOLINAS, CALIF. — The Calley Case, the war, the state of the ghettos, all the dire afflictions of the time — these are the concerns that make the headlines and the commentaries. This observer would like to take a day off from the omnipresent horrors of a troubled time to hail a small triumph.

At Audubon Canyon ranch near here is one of the last major rookeries of the great blue herons and the American egrets. It is a triumph of survival of a piece of the American past. And that survival is due in large part to the devotion of conservationists who have put so much time, energy and money into saving the nesting place of these beautiful birds.

There they are, the big blue-white herons and the dazzling white egrets with their nests in the highest branches of the redwood trees.

They swoop in with extraordinary grace from the nearby lagoon where they have been feeding, the six-foot wingspread shining in the sun.

Males and females spell each other on the nest where there are from three to six blue-green eggs. Through the telescope you see them with their long beaks carefully turning the eggs so they will get the same degree of warmth on each side. In many nests there are fuzzy gray young constantly demanding more regurgitated food from the parent birds.

They come to build their nests in late March. By late June or July the young are mature enough for the parents to take a dim view of any further care and feeding and they fly off to the inlets and lagoons that survive the proliferation of the builders.

Clerin W. Zumwalt, the Audubon Canyon naturalist, has taken remarkable pictures of the first flight of a fledgling egret — his hesitant take-off and uncertain catching of the wind currents, his abrupt descent and then a last-minute obedience to instinct. He curves his wings to slow the swift descent and comes in for a perfect landing back on the treetop.

In the spring the birds have a special mating plumage, a cascade of feathery white. This nearly cost them their existence early in the century when they were taken by hunters who got good prices for the plumage to adorn ladies' hats. The count shows a slight increase in the number of nests with about 200 young birds each year.

The threat today is not from hunters but from the subdividers and the population explosion in this most-populous state in the union. The Audubon Society and the devoted conservationists working to protect the heronry have bought much of the land adjacent to the canyon. Their goal is more protection with the acquisition of additional land that increases in cost as vacationists with weekend houses move in on this beautiful country.

The list of species threatened with extinction grows from year to year. One bird high on the list is the California condor. The last condor count was 52, which represented a slight drop from the previous year. The estimate is that 60 to 80 of these great birds still survive, but with hunters in remote areas shooting anything that flies their survival is in doubt.

Man in his aggressive, predatory fashion has again and again upset the balance of nature on this once-unspoiled continent. The blue fox was introduced in areas in the arctic and sub-arctic for the benefit of trappers. They played such havoc with the Aleutian Canada Goose that today perhaps 200 of this once-numerous species survive. The Department of Interior's fish and wildlife research center at Laurel, Md., recently shipped 75 Aleutian geese raised at the center to Amchitka Island where they were released.

The whooping crane, which was down to a bare survival minimum — perhaps a dozen or fewer birds in the wild — is moving up. The estimate today is 57, with another 20 in captivity. Here, too, the threat to the habitat is greater than the heedless hunter.

The heronry is a priceless bit of America's heritage. It gives a lift to the spirit, encouraging the belief that that heritage may not be entirely lost.

Capitol report by Bruce Bioassat

Hughes backup

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Barrel-chested Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa is the outsider among Democratic presidential prospects who ought to be most feared by other outsiders. And there are signs that at least one, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, recognizes the threat.

Hughes should be feared by the second-liners because several influential Democrats get quickly to him when they wonder where to go should front-running Sen. Edmund Muskie falter. They don't put the knock on Sen. George McGovern, but not many think he is going far.

Hughes has to be reckoned with, first off, because he has the tough look and the booming voice that make him a commanding "presidential" presence. His profile is ready now for a new dime.

Given this equipment, he makes a pretty good dent on any kind of audience, including the self-styled political sophisticates he addressed in Boston at an Americans for Democratic Action dinner.

In that speech, religious fundamentals were a stout thread. He invoked the Creator, and called for the "spiritual unity of our country."

If Muskie or Sen. Hubert Humphrey or President Nixon spoke thus, one easily could expect snorts of derision.

Hughes got away with it. By a curious process of transference, his evangelistic politics strikes many liberals as the New Politics. He throws out enough ADA-grabbers on the war, the blacks, the students and even the hard hats to keep his liberal credentials burnished.

Yet a careful look at his comment turns up nuggets of nearconservatism. Example from Boston:

"We need to rid ourselves of our own hostilities and resentments and to quit seeking scapegoats, whatever group it might be, on whom to blame the inaction of our society..."
